Heritage Centre Lectures 350 years of Obstetricians & Gynaecologists in Ireland

This year's St Luke's Heritage Centre lectures will mark the golden jubilee of the Institute of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists. Talks will explore various aspects of this area of medicine including James Wolveridge, who published the first work on midwifery in Ireland, the introduction of Midwifery regulation 100 years ago and Irish attitudes to contraception and family planning in the 20th century.

The lectures will be followed by the Kirkpatrick History of Medicine Award

Thursday 18 October, 11am – 5pm in 6 Kildare Street
Free admission. Accredited for 6 CPD points
